True Democratic Doctrine.

President Van Buren said in his message to congress in extra session in 1837, called because of the then financial crisis:

"It is not designed by the constitution that the government should assume the management of domestic or foreign exchange. It is indeed authorized to regulate by law the commerce between the states, and to provide a general standard of value or medium of exchange in gold and silver, but it is not its province to aid individuals in the transfer of their funds. As justly might it be called upon for transportation of their merchandise. These are operations of trade; they ought to be conducted by those who are interested in them, in the same manner that the incidental difficulties are encountered by other classes of citizens."

This was the Democratic doctrine of that period. It was just after the Democratic party had won its great and crowning victory in obtaining mastery of the money power. But the scene has changed. Now "money is king," and controls not only the action of the government, but the destinies of the people. It is no longer our servant, but our relentless master.

SHE SHOPS!

She shops!
She does not mean to buy,
For funds are low and prices high,
So many people wonder why
She shops!

She shops!
She keeps herself apprised
Of all the bargains advertised,
And with a gusto undisguised—
She shops!

She shops!
The tired assistant sighs,
For long experience makes him wise,
He knows wherein her weakness lies—
She shops!

She shops!
She hurries to and fro,
And when the sun is setting low,
A thousand captured samples show
She shops!

PITH AND POINT.

It sounds sort of queer, but it was because of his sand that the wise man built his house upon a rock.—Boston Transcript.

Golfer—"Dear, dear, there cannot be worse players than myself." Caddie—"Weel, maybe, they're worse players, but they dinna play!"—Fun.

"Pa, what is a lineal descendant?" "A lineal descendant is a person who has to fall back on some praiseworthy ancestor for his own importance."—Detroit Free Press.

"Professor Brainard is the wisest man that ever lived." "Indeed!" "Yes. Why, he can say 'I love' in nine different languages—and hasn't said it in any."—Harper's Bazar.

Hills—"Young looking chap—Brown." Hills—"Why, he's a lawyer of twenty years' standing." Hills—"I should think he would be tired by this time."—New York World.

"How about the children?" asked the inquisitive neighbor. "Oh," said the man who had married again to get a mother for his little ones, "she doesn't mind them at all."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Miss Sheafe—"Oh, just look at that wheat rising and falling in the breeze! How beautiful it is!" Mr. Cityman—"Ah, but you ought to see it rising and falling in the Corn Exchange."—Tit-Bits.

"I think," remarked the fond mother, "that our little Willie will make a noise in the world some day." "I shall have no objection," retorted little Willie's father, "if it will help to keep him from howling at night."—Judy.

Wright—"I believe a good deal of human interest could be put into a play with the scenes laid in a pawnshop." Reed—"My dear boy, the interest in a pawnshop is something absolutely inhuman."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Here is a short poem taken from the French," said the would-be contributor. "The French should be everlastingly grateful to you," snorted the editor, as he opened the door and bowed a series of short bows.—Casell's.

She had sent a telegram and was waiting for an answer. Suddenly the peculiar halting click of the receiving machine sounded in the office; and she said to her companion: "That's from George, I know. I can tell his stut-ter."—Modern Society.

"It's all up with us now," he remarked, as he raised the umbrella. "No," she replied; "you mean it is all over between us." And if it was not laughter that shook the ribs of the umbrella it must have been the wind.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

First Artist—"Well, old man, how's business?" Second Artist—"Oh, splendid! Got a commission from a millionaire. Wants his children painted very badly." First Artist (pleasantly)—"Well, my boy, you're the very man for the job."—Life.

She was a lovely girl, but she didn't know anything about the language of the game. "Why," she innocently asked, "why does that big fellow look as if he had stuffed himself out with a pillow?" The young man at her side laughed convulsively. "So that he can touch down," he hoarsely shrieked, and fell off the seat.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Every farmer's wife knows how necessary it is that the milk buckets, pans, churns, and other implements of the dairy be perfectly clean and free from taint. A common yellow soap that smells of rosin should never be used for washing these. Such soaps are made of materials that you would not use for any purpose. Besides, they are sticky and the soap will get into the cracks and corners and stay there. Ivory Soap is pure, it is well made, and only sweet, clean materials are used. Then it rinses readily.

IVORY SOAP IS 99 4/100 PER CENT. PURE.
